Notes for Henri LeBlanc:

Henri came to Dalton Massachusetts by train from Moncton New Brunswick and entered the U.S.

Generation 7 (con't)

through Vanceboro ME on April. 13, 1885.

Father Thibodeau, parish priest of St. Pierre Parish in Cocagne NB told me that the folks going to the States were advised to anglicize their french names to help with their transition, Henri anglicized his name to Henry White when he came to the United States and so too did many of his brothers. Many of the French immigrants who came during this period including his wife Anne-Marie Bourque changed her name to Marie Anne Burke.

Henri was a carpenter and for a time worked at the carpenter shop for the Byron and Weston Paper mill.

For a brief period, at least in October of 1898, they lived in Middlefield where their daughter Maria Clara died. Maria was brought to Dalton and buried in the family burial lot at Fairview Cemetery on Curtis St.

Henry and Marie Anne lived on Hale Street in Dalton for only a few years.

They were next found at Housatonic Street in Dalton.

They then moved to 36 Depot Street near the Center Block and eventually to 933 East Main Street where they lived until the family built the house at 16 Lake Street. This lot was also part of the East Main Street property and behind the main house.

The main house at 933 East Main remained in the family until 1962 when it was sold to Gordon and Marion FitzPatrick.

Notes for Anne Marie Bourque:

Anne Marie Bourque, Marie Anne Burke, in the 1926-1928 Berkshire County Directory,

Marie Anne was listed as operating a bakery and lunch at 14 Depot Street.

In 1929, after moving to 933 East Main Street, Henry put on an addition to the front of the house for Marie Anne to operate her Bakery & Lunch.

Notes for Philip Theodore White:

Phil was the barber who served on the USS Quincy and survived her sinking at the battle at Guadalcanal on August 9, 1942.

The Battle of Savo Island August 9, 1942

The Japanese Force was diverted from other assignments as soon as word reached Admiral Mikawa that the seaplane base at Tulagi was being invaded. These ships headed slowly towards Guadalcanal. They waited until some information was available so Admiral Mikawa could develop a plan. They also spent some time on the way trying to deceive the US planes that spotted the force. The Japanese objective was to destroy the transports.

The American Force was assigned to protect the troop transport ships bringing the First Marine Division to Guadalcanal.

The US Forces had been on alert since prior to the invasion on August 7. They had been involved in several Air Raids during the first two days, they were also watchful for Japanese submarines. This second night off Guadalcanal was to be their last night. They were scheduled to pull out the next day.

The US Forces were divided into three groups. The Eastern Group was not involved in the battle. They patrolled between Guadalcanal and Tulagi. The Southern Group included the cruisers Chicago, Canberra, Australia, and destroyers Patterson and Bagley. They patrolled south of Savo Island. The Northern Group included the cruisers Vincennes, Astoria and Quincy, and destroyers Helm and Wilson. They patrolled north of Savo. Destroyers Blue and Ralph Talbot patrolled a picket line, one on each side of Savo Island to the North.

The Japanese spent the two days gathering information from the returning planes involved in the Air Raids and their scout planes. They worked very effectively to not be caught by US patrol planes moving toward Guadalcanal. They knew which US ships were there. They had a goal, the troop transports. They were prepared for battle. They brought the battle to the US Navy on Japanese terms. They would steam in a battle line of Cruisers with the destroyer Yunagi last in line. The plan was to approach Guadalcanal through the Slot, entering Iron Bottom Sound between Savo and Guadalcanal, brushing aside any opposing ships. They would attack the transports off Guadalcanal, then move to the transports off Tulagi. When finished they would leave Iron Bottom Sound between Savo and Florida islands and withdraw North, through the Slot. The scout planes from the IJN cruisers would scout ahead and on signal drop illuminating flares.

The Battle

At 54 minutes after midnight on August 9, the Japanese sighted the picket destroyer USS Blue. They continued on, while Blue did not spot them. At 1:36 am they spotted a group of ships guarding the southern entrance and launched torpedos. At 1:43 USS Patterson sighted the Japanese and broadcast a radio alarm.

Warning - Warning: Strange Ships Entering Harbor!

At the same time, Japanese Floatplanes dropped flares over the transports off Guadalcanal. These flares silhouetted Chicago and Canberra of the Southern Force. Australia had pulled out of the line to take Admiral Crutchley, RAN, to meet with Admiral Turner and General Vandegrift. The Japanese Cruiser line was 4,500 yards away. They opened fire on the American cruisers. On the Canberra a sharp-eyed lookout had spotted the Japanese ships, and then the torpedos fired earlier started to hit. The Alarm was still sounding and the minute that started at 1:43 am was not finished Two torpedos and 14 shells were to hit. The Japanese had achieved complete surprise.

The Chicago was hit by one torpedo and one shell. With part of her bow blown off, Chicago looked for the battle, but steamed the wrong way. Admiral Mikawa had turned his cruisers to the north.

At 1:48 the Japanese fired torpedos at the Northern Force. Cruisers Quincy, Astoria and Vincennes were under attack. Vincennes took two or three torpedos, all ships took hits from gun fire. These cruisers did return fire. The Chokai took two hits. By shortly after 2:00 the battle was over. The Japanese regrouped and retreated northward. They left behind four Cruisers sunk with one badly damaged. The Japanese took minor damage from a few shells to two cruisers. It was only the beginning for these seven cruisers when the S-44 fired torpedos and sunk IJN Kako just before she arrived back at her base on New Ireland. By the end of the war all seven had been sunk.

Notes for Henri LeBlanc:

Henri came to Dalton Massachusetts by train from Moncton New Brunswick and entered the U.S. through Vanceboro ME on April. 13, 1885.

Father Thibodeau, parish priest of St. Pierre Parish in Cocagne NB told me that the folks going to the States were advised to anglicize their french names to help with their transition, Henri anglicized his name to Henry White when he came to the United States and so too did many of his brothers. Many of the French immigrants who came during this period including his wife Anne-Marie Bourque changed her name to Marie Anne Burke.

Henri was a carpenter and for a time worked at the carpenter shop for the Byron and Weston Paper mill.

For a brief period, at least in October of 1898, they lived in Middlefield where their daughter Maria Clara died. Maria was brought to Dalton and buried in the family burial lot at Fairview Cemetery on Curtis St.

Henry and Marie Anne lived on Hale Street in Dalton for only a few years.

They were next found at Housatonic Street in Dalton.

They then moved to 36 Depot Street near the Center Block and eventually to 933 East Main Street where they lived until the family built the house at 16 Lake Street. This lot was also part of the East Main Street property and behind the main house.

Destroyers Blue and Ralph Talbot patrolled a picket line, one on each side of Savo Island to the North.

The Japanese spent the two days gathering information from the returning planes involved in the Air Raids and their scout planes. They worked very effectively to not be caught by US patrol planes moving toward Guadalcanal. They knew which US ships were there. They had a goal, the troop transports. They were prepared for battle. They brought the battle to the US Navy on Japanese terms. They would steam in a battle line of Cruisers with the destroyer Yunagi last in line. The plan was to approach Guadalcanal through the Slot, entering Iron Bottom Sound between Savo and Guadalcanal, brushing aside any opposing ships. They would attack the transports off Guadalcanal, then move to the transports off Tulagi. When finished they would leave Iron Bottom Sound between Savo and Florida islands and withdraw North, through the Slot. The scout planes from the IJN cruisers would scout ahead and on signal drop illuminating flares.

The Battle

At 54 minutes after midnight on August 9, the Japanese sighted the picket destroyer USS Blue. They continued on, while Blue did not spot them. At 1:36 am they spotted a group of ships guarding the southern entrance and launched torpedos. At 1:43 USS Patterson sighted the Japanese and broadcast a radio alarm.

Warning - Warning: Strange Ships Entering Harbor!

At the same time, Japanese Floatplanes dropped flares over the transports off

Generation 8 (con't)

Guadalcanal. These flares silhouetted Chicago and Canberra of the Southern Force. Australia had pulled out of the line to take Admiral Crutchley, RAN, to meet with Admiral Turner and General Vandegrift. The Japanese Cruiser line was 4,500 yards away. They opened fire on the American cruisers. On the Canberra a sharp-eyed lookout had spotted the Japanese ships, and then the torpedos fired earlier started to hit. The Alarm was still sounding and the minute that started at 1:43 am was not finished. Two torpedos and 14 shells were to hit. The Japanese had achieved complete surprise.

The Chicago was hit by one torpedo and one shell. With part of her bow blown off, Chicago looked for the battle, but steamed the wrong way. Admiral Mikawa had turned his cruisers to the north.

At 1:48 the Japanese fired torpedos at the Northern Force. Cruisers Quincy, Astoria and Vincennes were under attack. Vincennes took two or three torpedos, all ships took hits from gun fire. These cruisers did return fire. The Chokai took two hits. By shortly after 2:00 the battle was over. The Japanese regrouped and retreated northward. They left behind four Cruisers sunk with one badly damaged. The Japanese took minor damage from a few shells to two cruisers. It was only the beginning for these seven cruisers when the S-44 fired torpedos and sunk IJN Kako just before she arrived back at her base on New Ireland. By the end of the war all seven had been sunk.

Notes for Donald Edward White:

Don and Eleanor lived in the house built for his parents at 16 Lake Street in Dalton Massachusetts. This house was on the property of the 933 East Main Street house where the family lived and Anne Marie ran a bakery. The house was built in the 20's by the family with Henri and Henry (Henny) as the key carpenter's. Henny died of cancer in 1930, Marshall died in 1934 and Henri died in 1936. In those years, wakes were held in the homes and Grandma was said to have commented that the house was built as a funeral parlor.

Don's mother, Ann Marie, lived with Don until her death in 1958.

Don was an accomplished guitar player playing a style similar to Les Paul. When I (Peter H. White) was small, his guitar playing was what drove me to learn to play. In about 2000, cousin Hank Leohr gave me the guitar I remember watching Don play. A 1939 archtop electric Epiphone New Yorker with a Rickenbacker horseshoe pickup.

Eleanor was a terrific singer and together they would perform mostly at the Bass Ridge Country Club in Hinsdale Massachusetts.

- vi. PHILIP THEODORE WHITE (son of Philippe LeBlanc and Marie-Odilon Bourque) was born on Mar 25, 1915 in Madison Maine. He died on Feb 25, 1975 in Dalton Massachusetts.

Notes for Philip Theodore White:

Phil was the barber who served on the USS Quincy and survived her sinking at the battle at Guadalcanal on August 9, 1942.

The Battle of Savo Island August 9, 1942

The Japanese Force was diverted from other assignments as soon as word reached Admiral Mikawa that the seaplane base at Tulagi was being invaded. These ships headed slowly towards Guadalcanal. They waited until some information was available so Admiral Mikawa could develop a plan. They also spent some time on the way trying to deceive the US planes that spotted the force. The Japanese objective was to destroy the transports.

The American Force was assigned to protect the troop transport ships bringing the First Marine Division to Guadalcanal.

The US Forces had been on alert since prior to the invasion on August 7. They had been involved in several Air Raids during the first two days, they were also watchful for Japanese submarines. This second night off Guadalcanal was to be their last night. They were scheduled to pull out the next day.

The US Forces were divided into three groups. The Eastern Group was not involved in the battle. They patrolled between Guadalcanal and Tulagi. The Southern Group included the cruisers Chicago, Canberra, Australia, and destroyers Patterson and Bagley. They patrolled south of Savo Island. The Northern Group included the cruisers Vincennes, Astoria and Quincy, and destroyers Helm and Wilson. They patrolled north of Savo. Destroyers Blue and Ralph Talbot patrolled a picket line, one on each side of Savo Island to the North.

The Japanese spent the two days gathering information from the returning planes involved in the Air Raids and their scout planes. They worked very effectively to not be caught by US patrol planes moving toward Guadalcanal. They knew which US ships were there. They had a goal, the troop transports. They were prepared for battle. They brought the battle to the US Navy on Japanese terms. They would steam in a battle line of Cruisers with the destroyer Yunagi last in line. The plan was to approach Guadalcanal through the Slot, entering Iron Bottom Sound between Savo and Guadalcanal, brushing aside any opposing ships. They would attack the transports off Guadalcanal, then move to the transports off Tulagi. When finished they would leave Iron Bottom Sound between Savo and Florida islands and withdraw North, through the Slot. The scout planes from the IJN cruisers would scout ahead and on signal drop illuminating flares.

The Battle

At 54 minutes after midnight on August 9, the Japanese sighted the picket destroyer USS Blue. They continued on, while Blue did not spot them. At 1:36 am they spotted a group of ships guarding the southern entrance and launched torpedos. At 1:43 USS Patterson sighted the Japanese and broadcast a radio alarm.

Warning - Warning: Strange Ships Entering Harbor!

Generation 9 (con't)

At the same time, Japanese Floatplanes dropped flares over the transports off Guadalcanal. These flares silhouetted Chicago and Canberra of the Southern Force. Australia had pulled out of the line to take Admiral Crutchley, RAN, to meet with Admiral Turner and General Vandegrift. The Japanese Cruiser line was 4,500 yards away. They opened fire on the American cruisers. On the Canberra a sharp-eyed lookout had spotted the Japanese ships, and then the torpedos fired earlier started to hit. The Alarm was still sounding and the minute that started at 1:43 am was not finished Two torpedos and 14 shells were to hit. The Japanese had achieved complete surprise.

The Chicago was hit by one torpedo and one shell. With part of her bow blown off, Chicago looked for the battle, but steamed the wrong way. Admiral Mikawa had turned his cruisers to the north.

At 1:48 the Japanese fired torpedos at the Northern Force. Cruisers Quincy, Astoria and Vincennes were under attack. Vincennes took two or three torpedos, all ships took hits from gun fire. These cruisers did return fire. The Chokai took two hits. By shortly after 2:00 the battle was over. The Japanese regrouped and retreated northward. They left behind four Cruisers sunk with one badly damaged. The Japanese took minor damage from a few shells to two cruisers. It was only the beginning for these seven cruisers when the S-44 fired torpedos and sunk IJN Kako just before she arrived back at her base on New Ireland. By the end of the war all seven had been sunk.

87. ANNE MARIE⁹ BOURQUE (Henri⁷ LeBlanc, Joseph Thaddee⁶ LeBlanc, Francois⁵ LeBlanc, Simon⁴ LeBlanc, Francois³ LeBlanc, Jacques² LeBlanc, Daniel¹ LeBlanc) was born on Dec 31, 1872 in Cocagne New Brunswick Canada. She died on Mar 17, 1958 in Dalton Massachusetts. She married Henri LeBlanc (son of Joseph Thaddee LeBlanc and Gertrude Goguen) on Jul 19, 1894 in Dalton Massachusetts. Notes for Anne Marie Bourque:

Anne Marie Bourque, Marie Anne Burke, in the 1926-1928 Berkshire County Directory,

Marie Anne was listed as operating a bakery and lunch at 14 Depot Street.

In 1929, after moving to 933 East Main Street, Henry put on an addition to the front of the house for Marie Anne to operate her Bakery & Lunch.

Notes for Henri LeBlanc:

Henri came to Dalton Massachusetts by train from Moncton New Brunswick and entered the U.S. through Vanceboro ME on April. 13, 1885.

Father Thibodeau, parish priest of St. Pierre Parish in Cocagne NB told me that the folks going to the States were advised to anglicize their french names to help with their transition, Henri anglicized his name to Henry White when he came to the United States and so too did many of his brothers. Many of the French immigrants who came during this period including his wife Anne-Marie Bourque changed her name to Marie Anne Burke.

Henri was a carpenter and for a time worked at the carpenter shop for the Byron and Weston Paper mill.

For a brief period, at least in October of 1898, they lived in Middlefield where their daughter Maria Clara died. Maria was brought to Dalton and buried in the family burial lot at Fairview Cemetery on Curtis St.

Henry and Marie Anne lived on Hale Street in Dalton for only a few years.

They were next found at Housatonic Street in Dalton.

They then moved to 36 Depot Street near the Center Block and eventually to 933 East Main Street where they lived until the family built the house at 16 Lake Street. This lot was also part of the East Main Street property and behind the main house.

Notes for Donald Edward White:

Don and Eleanor lived in the house built for his parents at 16 Lake Street in Dalton Massachusetts. This house was on the property of the 933 East Main Street house where the family lived and Anne Marie ran a bakery. The house was built in the 20's by the family with Henri and Henry (Henny) as the key carpenter's. Henny died of cancer in 1930, Marshall died in 1934 and Henri died in 1936. In those years, wakes were held in the homes and Grandma was said to have commented that the house was built as a funeral parlor.

Don's mother, Ann Marie, lived with Don until her death in 1958.

Don was an accomplished guitar player playing a style similar to Les Paul. When I (Peter H. White) was small, his guitar playing was what drove me to learn to play. In about 2000, cousin Hank Leohr gave me the guitar I remember watching Don play. A 1939 archtop electric Epiphone New Yorker with a Rickenbacker horseshoe pickup.

Eleanor was a terrific singer and together they would perform mostly at the Bass Ridge Country Club in Hinsdale Massachusetts.

Notes for Donald Edward White:

Don and Eleanor lived in the house built for his parents at 16 Lake Street in Dalton Massachusetts. This house was on the property of the 933 East Main Street house where the family lived and Anne Marie ran a bakery. The house was built in the 20's by the family with Henri and Henry (Henny) as the key carpenter's. Henny died of cancer in 1930, Marshall died in 1934 and Henri died in 1936. In those years, wakes were held in the homes and Grandma was said to have commented that the house was built as a funeral parlor.

Don's mother, Ann Marie, lived with Don until her death in 1958.

Don was an accomplished guitar player playing a style similar to Les Paul. When I (Peter H. White) was small, his guitar playing was what drove me to learn to play. In about 2000, cousin Hank Leohr gave me the guitar I remember watching Don play. A 1939 archtop electric Epiphone New Yorker with a Rickenbacker horseshoe pickup.

Eleanor was a terrific singer and together they would perform mostly at the Bass Ridge Country Club in Hinsdale Massachusetts.
